Burns are one of the most common and serious injuries. While it is necessary to get medical treatment for severe burns, various remedies are used to cure patients who have simple burns. On the other hand, nowadays patients who suffer from burns are prescribed to use creams or medical products that are made of inorganic or synthetic substances. Even though those medicines are effective for such cases, it cannot be denied that most of them have long term effects. The purpose of this project is to develop an alternative treatment for burns. Recently natural treatments have become more popular. Thus, a new cream which is a mixture of bees wax, egg, olive oil and glycerin is produced as a better and natural product and costs less than other medicines for burns. It is aimed to recover damaged skin naturally and easily which is caused by the burn with this new cream.
