Waste-water Treatment Using Nano-particles under Natural Solar Radiation

Alajmi, Heba

Catalytic Reduction photosynthesis process is a useful technique for purifying contaminated water resulting from petroleum residues. In this project was to study the optical cracking ammonia using second particles of titanium dioxide nanometer grafted gold particles of nanometer order to improve the catalytic properties and increase the activity of the second material titanium oxide using sunlight

Awards Won: